

April 21st, 2021

To all NAIST students

Recently, the number of COVID-19 cases in Osaka and Nara Prefectures has increased rapidly and the situation continues to be quite grave.

At NAIST we have continued work with related organizations to implement strict infection prevention measures to protect the health of our students, faculty and staff, and to maintain a safe campus environment.

While, in general, we are currently holding classes in-person, online class participation using the lecture archive system is possible as we try to balance safety and effective educational programming.

For classes held in-person, we will accommodate those students who are worried about their family, the area they live in, or commuting to the campus at this time, so please contact the lecturer in charge.

NAIST will continue to take any necessary preventative measures to ensure that you can have a meaningful student life while protecting the learning environment. We will strive to do this, but, at the same time, your cooperation is of the most importance. Protect yourself from infection while paying attention to your actions and the measures established to protect the people around you.

Considering the current pandemic, the influence our individual actions have on society may be greater than ever. Let's walk to the end of this tunnel together, one step at a time.

SHIOZAKI Kazuhiro

President, Nara Institute of Science and Technology